

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A control system for an agile optical network uses constraint-based rules to minimize route validation computations required when the network is reconfigured. A hierarchical control structure facilitates admission control and insulates admission control from interaction with the physical layer of the network.